

Hi, my name is Adam Ramadan, and I am currently serving as Community Health Director for NJNS. I am a Junior at Felician College in Lodi and have had great experiences within my nursing education. Prior to nursing, while working for a diagnostic laboratory, I received direction from mentors in my life, guiding me to dedicate my life in nursing. Nursing school has inspired me as well as many other nursing students to become active within the community by reaching our citizens to promote and encourage optimum health. My goal is to have nursing students collectively help make those within our community healthier and happier people.
